WARD HAS INCOME PLAN

Carey Bill for Relief Also Adopted; Numerous Important Laws ConsideredCOLUMBUS, Nov. 20—(INS)—
The senate and house today dug
out from under a deluge of taxation bills, rushed through action
on a drivers' license measure and made haste to wind up the special session before the New Year.Ten measures, all bearing upon taxation for 1936, were tossed into the House after the lower body approved the Kane bill providing for a drivers' license, with fee of 40 cents. The measure is almost identical to the Handley
bill, passed by the legislature during regular session but vetoed by Governor Davey because the fee of 25 cents, included in the bill, was too low in his opinion.The House also passed the Carey bill which makes Ohio laws
conform to provisions of the federal social security act. Major provision of the measure removes the requirement that the Ohio old age pension laws which require property to the state before becoming eligible for pensions. Advocated by the governor, this measure, sponsors predict, will enable
Ohio to obtain more than $8,000-
000 under federal social security
distributions to states.

Ward For Income Tax

Rep. P. E. Ward (R), Chardon, supplied two of the taxation bills,
introducing a new state income tax similar to his bill that passed the house but died in the senate during the regular session. The other Ward bill proposes to list tangible personal property at full value instead of on the present basis, at 50 and 70 per cent of assessed values.The chain store tax proposal of number of civil cases. Dr. E. E.

Campbell, his personal physician, the end came.The attack was traceable to severe injuries the jurist suffered law practice at Delaware and while serving as city solicitor in attended political conferences with Republican leaders before leaving ed the treaty a severe blow toUnited States agriculture and the further opening of the domestic market to foreign farm imports."The Canadian treaty," the titular head of the Republican party said, "is just another instance of this hasty economic planning without full consideration of consequences. There has been no opportunity given for public debate, no opportunity for adequate hearing of the groups affected.""But this much is obvious. It

ALL ATTENDANCE MARKS BROKEN AT OHIO STATE

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20—When 43,921 persons braved a cold rain last Saturday to watch the Ohio State University football team defeat Illinois it marked a new attendance record for home games in Ohio Stadium.

During the five games played this season at home the Bucks performed before a total crowd of 252,950 persons. The previous home attendance record was made in 1928 when 232,265 persons watched the Ohio State team play.

At home and abroad this season the Bucks have played to 287,864 which means that if a crowd of 17,892 witness the Michigan-Ohio game next Saturday at Ann Arbor, the all-time attendance record of 305,756 set in 1928 will be shattered.

Rickey and Terry Rouse Trade Winds in Dayton

Cardinals After Ball Players and New York Mogul Even Willing to Put Hubbell on Block

DAYTON, Nov. 20—(INS)—For the next three days this town will be the baseball capital of the United States.

The minor league moguls swung into executive session today with trade winds blowing all about their ears. Some are here to buy, others to sell and others to barter for baseball chattels on the hoof.

As usual, trade interest centered on the activities of the major league brethren, some of whom are sure to go away from here with new names on their rosters.

The St. Louis Cardinals will be dickering high wide and handsome. They need more pitching strength, an infielder and at least one more slugger in the outfield. They have a world of trading material, including the irreplaceable Pepper Martin, but not including Dizzy Dean.

Bill Terry, manager of the New York Giants, had a beg, borrow or steal glint in his eyes this morning. Bill makes no bones about it—his Giants as now constituted won't do. He needs certain vital replacements and he intends to get them.

First of all, he wants a pitcher or two, a first baseman who can fill in for himself, a second baseman, a third baseman and he would not turn down another slugging outfielder.

In exchange for all this he might be willing to put Bud Parmelee, Fred Fitzsimmons and even Carl Hubbell on the auction block. He also would be willing to part with two or three youngsters like Weintraub and Danning, to say nothing of a big bundle of cash. Bill has his eye on Jim Collins of the Cardinals and if he can offer enough, he might land the slugging first baseman. If not, he may make a bid for Dolph Camilli of the Phillies, or, failing that, he will go after a minor leaguer.

Coach Harold Olsen's team, which finished in second place in the Western Conference race last year, is faced with a 20-game schedule this season. Western Conference games include home and home contests with Wisconsin, Purdue, Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota, and Indiana, and non-conference games with Harvard, Notre Dame, Pennsylvania, Muskingum, Evansville, and George Washington.

The complete schedule: Dec. 12—George Washington at Columbus. Dec. 14—Evansville College at Columbus (Clinic Game.) Dec. 16—Muskingum at New Concord.

Jan. 1—Harvard at Columbus. Jan. 3—Wisconsin at Columbus. Jan. 6—Purdue at Columbus. Jan. 11—Iowa at Iowa City. Jan. 13—Illinois at Champaign. Jan. 18—Iowa at Columbus. Jan. 25—Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.

Jan. 27—George Washington at Washington. Feb. 1—Minnesota at Columbus. Feb. 3—Purdue at Purdue. Feb. 8—Minnesota at Minneapolis. Feb. 10—Wisconsin at Madison. Feb. 15—Indiana at Columbus. Feb. 24—Ohio Wesleyan at Columbus.

Feb. 29—Illinois at Columbus. March 2—Indiana at Bloomington. March 4—Notre Dame at Notre Dame.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Nov. 20—(INS)—Walter O. Briggs, owner of the world champion Detroit Tigers, today denied that William G. "Billy" Evans, resigned general manager of the Cleveland Indians, would become affiliated with the tigers.

"Mickey Cochrane is the greatest manager in baseball," Briggs declared. "Regardless of whatever other changes may be made, Cochrane will remain in his present capacity."

Noted Dance Director Names All-star Chorus

Connolly Picks Keeler, Crawford, Rogers, Damita, Powell, Del Rio and Others; all in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 20—(INS)—Bobby Connolly, noted dance director, today named an "All-American" chorus.

"If I could assemble the eleven dancers of my choice on one stage or in one picture I'd have the finest group of talent ever to compose a single chorus," Connolly said.

Football coaches and other gridiron experts select members from many teams for their "All-Americans" but Connolly didn't have to go outside of Hollywood to select his 11 team members. They are: Ruby Keeler, Joan Crawford, Ginger Rogers, Lili Damita, Eleanor Powell, Dolores Del Rio, Ann Dvorak, Paula Stone, Margaret Lindsey, Claire Dodd, and Boots Mallory.

Every member of his chorus, Connolly pointed out, now is prominent on the screen. Some gained their greatest fame not as dancers but as dramatic actresses.

With the exception of the Misses Del Rio, Dvorak and Lindsay, all members of Connolly's "All-

FARMS FOR SALE.

Buyers—Do you realize that the Federal Government has within the past few days approved contracts for the purchase of 41,000 acres of Ohio farm and timber lands?

Do you realize that the wide awake speculators, from the large industrial centers, also the up to the minute business men of our local communities, have been buying these central Ohio farms by the wholesale, and that within the past few months several thousand acres of Ohio's best producing farm lands have become the property of this class of investors?

Do you realize that it would be almost impossible to buy a single farm from any one of these late purchasers regardless of the size of the profit you might offer them on their investment?

AND WHY These investors are fully aware of the fact, that there is no other investment in the world today, as safe and sound where they can invest their capital, that will yield such large returns and afford them the chance for speculation the pride in ownership and the satisfaction of mind as the money they have invested in these good old Ohio farms.

I have listed for sale a large number of farms in every location in Central Ohio. The kind of a farm you would feel proud to own, ranging in size from 10 to 400 acre tracts, the very choicest of homes and investment lands for sale at a price you can afford to pay on easy terms and low interest rates. If you are interested call at my office, tell me what you want and where you want it, and I will do my best to help solve your problems.

DRESBACH BUYS FOX FARM SITE; PLANS ACTIVITY

Kingston Man to Have Filling Station, Night Club, Riding Academy

Carson Dresbach, Kingston, who recently retired from the Scioto Live Stock Co., has purchased the Fox Farm property on Route 23, north of Chillicothe, and plans to build a filling station, operate a night club, install a riding academy and open a live stock market.

Mr. Dresbach said he would begin operations at once and hopes to have the live stock market going by next week. He did not state who would be associated with him at this time. It is understood Mr. Dresbach is forming a company and will operate three live stock markets in Ross-co.

The Fox Farm property was owned by Henry M. Redd and the heirs of John H. Gearhart, who was associated with Mr. Redd when they purchased the property from A. L. Turnipseed. Turnipseed purchased the property from the late Scott Harman.

In recent months the property had been rented to Frank R. Erdmann, who operated a tourist's home and party home under the name of Erd-Manor.

TWO NEIGHBORS

By J. W. J.

The venerable John J. Brehmer, was my near and intimate neighbor for nearly twenty years. It has not been my good fortune in an entire life-time, to have known a kinder or a finer citizen. His salient characteristics, were industry, frugality, honesty, respect for law and the Sabbath and an unflinching belief in the Bible. Born of German parentage, he was, nevertheless, a thorough-going American. He was a fundamentalist in both politics and religion for the modernist or his exploration into the unknown and unrevealed. He was a child of nature and above all things else in the world, he reveled in the development of plant life and the beauty and fragrance of the flowers of garden and field. Three or four days preceding his death, he was able to go for a brief walk into the little neighboring park across the street from his cottage home and for a few brief moments, as he had so often done, engage his neighbor in a last and pleasant conversation. Already, the impress of death was upon his brow. He was a-tremble and a-weary and turning his face homeward it was if he had in mind the appealing lines of the poet—

The way has been long, my Father and my soul
Longs for the rest and quiet of the goal;
While yet I journey thru this weary land
Keep me from wandering, Father, take my hand
And thru this gloom,
Lead safely home Thy child.

For well on to a quarter of a century, it was my good fortune and pleasure to know intimately and confidentially, Noah G. Spangler. For several years, he and his good wife, were residents of my native town of Jackson from which point he superintended the operations of one of the large iron furnaces of that region, located some two miles west of the town and within a stone's throw, almost of the farm on which I was born and grew into manhood. Noah Spangler was a man of excellent parts and possessed many of the qualifications of real leadership. He had, also, executive ability of a high order. He was a man of excellent judgment. He possessed strong convictions of right and wrong and with them, the courage to maintain his convictions. In all movements for reform, he was an indefatigable worker. He was generous to a fault and unknown to most of his friends, he was a real philanthropist and benefactor. He was independent in politics and his religion consisted largely in the service he was able to render to others. After an absence of many years from his native town he returned with his wife to re-establish the home-life among the friends and acquaintances of earlier days; and but for an unfortunate automobile accident of several years ago, his life tenure might have been lengthened indefinitely. Noah Spangler's creed of life might have been summed up in these pertinent lines—

I hold, that man alone succeeds

Whose life is crowned with worthy deeds;
Who, battling 'gainst each seeming wrong,
Could meet disaster with a song;
Feel sure of victory in defeat
And rise refreshed the foe to meet;
Who only lives the world to bless,
Can never fail—he is success.

Green Is Speaker

Mr. Green has been actively associated with the farm bureau movement since its inception in Ohio 17 years ago and became widely known for his sound judgment in agricultural matters.

CLARK TO LEAD ROGERS' GROUP

Funeral Director Seeks Money
for Memorial Fund

Fred C. Clark, S. Court - st, has been appointed local chairman of the Will Rogers Memorial Commission for Circleville, Earle Johnson of Cleveland, active state chairman of the Commission for Ohio announced today. John N. Garner, Vice President of the United States, is national chairman of the Commission.

Mr. Clark is now forming a local executive committee to conduct the campaign in Circleville and vicinity. Members of this committee will preside over sub-committees in charge of various aspects of the drive.

The object of the campaign, which started on November 4, Will Rogers' fifty-sixth birthday anniversary, and will extend to Thanksgiving Eve, is to obtain the largest possible number of gifts from those millions who admired the cowboy-humorist. Contributions may be made to any bank in the country. This is an arrangement unprecedented in the gathering of funds for charitable or humanitarian cause. Many newspapers will also accept contributions.

SENATE DELAYS OKEH OF CLINTON-CO LAKE

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20—(INS)—The senate finance committee today postponed action on a request of Clinton-co residents for a state appropriation of $50,000 to help in creating a lake on Cowans creek near Wilmington.

Members of the committee delayed action until major state problems have been considered after listening to protests against the lake appropriation.

Mrs. D. C. Austin, near Wilmington, spokesman for the group protesting the state grant, claimed the lake park is not necessary since the site is only a few miles from Fort Ancient state park in Warren county. She charged it is a commercial venture and claimed a majority of farmers owning land in the area are opposed to the project.

Other Clinton-co residents appearing against the proposal were: D. C. Austin, P. M. Chaplin, Harley Rapp, Ed Murphy, William Groves, Archie Sprague, George Sprague and C. W. Sewell.

GOOD LOOKING

Nearly everyone we ever heard of will contend that a one-dollar bill is handsome. Even a dime is good-looking and a nickel is not to be sneered at. But in the mind attuned to the practicalities of life and probably short on art, a five-dollar bill is just five times as handsome as a one-dollar bill, no matter how disappointed the engraver may be with his product. It is a matter of progressiveness, and those unusual persons who claim to have seen them assure us there can be no doubt about it; that the one-thousand-dollar bill is the one and only "handsomest ever," and that by and large it will retain its superiority in the real of beauty no matter what flights of fancy may be taken with the one-dollar bill.

RESULTS WILL TALK

FOR several years past, members of the legal profession have waxed eloquent over the purging of their ranks. Inspiring attacks have been directed toward ambulance chasers, legalistic racketeers and attorneys who connive with the underworld.

That the moment for action, rather than mere words, has now arrived is plainly indicated by the following statement from former Justice William L. Ransom, president of the American Bar Association.

"The lawyers of America will appropriately be judged not by the vigor of the language which many lawyers use as to unworthy lawyers, but by the actual corrective results brought about in specific instances through the activity of the organized bar and the courts.

Will the American bar accept this challenge from its recognized leader? A somewhat skeptical and cynical lay public eagerly awaits the answer.

It is easy to remain friends. Just don't get interested in the same woman or the same dollar.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

How far will Great Britain go now on armaments? That is the question now since the Conservatives believe they have an election mandate.

To those who have been following the situation, the question creates great anxiety. The Tories are riding high. They will build the largest navy the world ever has seen. That is the view.

The cost—according to one English source—will be "scores of millions."

And the United States undoubtedly will keep up.

In the meantime, American liberals, alarmed, say that while vehement protests are heard over the millions spent for relief, no protests are heard for the millions that the United States is spending and will spend for armaments.

Of course, the plea is that what one country does, another must do. The Tories won on that argument—"national defense"—in England.

HOW FAR?
The Roosevelt administration has some idea as to what the British intend to do.
A British source has it that the admiralty is believed to plan, for one thing, to build 12 capital ships at $40,000,000 apiece. (These are to replace outdated vessels.) That totals $480,000,000. That, however, merely is the beginning.
There are to be many cruisers, destroyers, submarines, airplanes. No other country, except the United States, could find the money to build such a large fleet. The United States is expected to keep up, proportionately.

NO PLAN

The British Tories won the election with no plan. The irony of it was that both the Laborites and the Liberals had broad, concise programs. The Tories went into the election with a long, rambling emotional appeal for national defense—and that turned the trick.

But, now, in the sober morning after, British citizens are asking what the Conservatives really plan to do. For one thing, they made no promises for any definite social reforms. Social questions were swallowed up in the war emotionalism. But how far will the British cabinet go toward arming?

Will Britain try to outdo all the remaining countries of Europe in armaments?

And how high will that boost English taxes? There is no comeback now for the people—for as long as this parliament lasts—at least four or five years.

GERMANY

Many interesting developments have stemmed from the purchase of $19,000 worth of German steel by a subcontractor on New York's Tri-Borough bridge, being built with PWA money.

GUFFEY ACT FORCES USE OF CODE COAL UNDER ALL FEDERAL CONTRACTS

WASHINGTON—A bombshell is waiting behind the scenes of hundreds of business concerns which sell goods and services to the Government.

The Guffey Coal Act requires Government agencies to buy coal only from companies which are operating under the code provided in the Guffey Act. Few know, however, that there is a section (14-a) in the Act—slipped in just before it passed—that bars the awarding of Government contracts to all industrial concerns that do not use code coal.

Under the spurring of the Bituminous Coal Board, the Procurement Division of the Treasury is moving to put this sweeping clause into effect. Several days ago it held a secret conference of Government purchasing agents to discuss the framing of a new contract form for Federal buying.

The effect of this provision is far-reaching in the extreme.

It means that concerns selling shoes, shirts, food to the Army and Navy; utilities supplying electricity to post offices; building contractors, steel makers, warship builders, railroads carrying mail; in short, practically all industry must use code coal or do without Government business.

The leverage this specification gives the Coal Board in forcing coal operators to sign the code is terrific—which is exactly why it was eased into the law. The effect of the clause is to cut off non-complying coal companies from a vast volume of business, something which few will, or can, long resist.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Ex-Vice President Charley Curtis is irked at the way the Republican high command is leaving him out of its secret powwows. . . . Despite wintry weather, Secretary Ickes bends over his desk in shirt sleeves. . . . Secretary Wallace, who was a corn breeder before he came to Washington frequently asks foreigners in the Capital to procure for him specimens of the corn of their country. Latest request was made of Enrique Lozada, handsome Secretary of the Bolivian Legation. . . . Interior Department workers are intrigued by names they run across in administering the Virgin Islands; Careening Cove, Flamingo Point, Mermaids Chair, Watermelon Bay, Mangrove Lagoon, Chocolate Hole, and Threadneedle Point.

A correspondent reports that Il Duce lead a meticulously careful life, maintaining regular sleeping habits, a strict diet and safeguarding himself from the severities of the weather. Wonder if the boys he sends to Ethiopia fare as well?

If people drank during prohibition, to show they couldn't be bossed, who is bossing them now?

But no matter how free the opportunity, a good plow horse can't win a hurdle race.

The Romance Racket

CHAPTER 57

THE REST of that evening was passed on a false note. Owen felt to silence and Carol paced the rapid tempo with her small talk but, when he had gone, she threw herself on her bed and cried as though her heart were breaking as indeed it was. Owen's proposal was a cruel mockery of all that she ever dreamed. For that one blind instant she had thought he was confessing his love for her, but a glance at his set face, his unhappy eyes and the stilted phrases of his proposal told her the whole story. He felt that he had compromised her by appearing that night, and he was doing the "honorable" thing.

She might have had a chance to win him if this had not happened, but now that chance was gone forever and she must put him out of her life and her thoughts.

Meanwhile, Owen Craig, alone with his thoughts, found Carol's golden head rising between him and the midnight sky. Little lovable inflections in her voice echoed in his ears. The tender, thoughtful gestures she made as naturally as she breathed came out in the parade of his memories and he cursed himself for a blundering fool. Of course, a girl as fine and intelligent as Carol would have seen through his stupid action. She was fine and intelligent and he must treat her so. His thoughts brightened and he found himself swinging along toward his own apartment with a jaunty step.

Carol went to see Manfred Morris. If she was to fill her life with substitute excitements, she could think of no better way than in the theater. "You're thinner," Morris said to her, "and you look as though you needed a rest."

"I don't want a rest. I want excitement. I want something to do from the time I wake up until I fall in bed exhausted at night."

"Hollywood is the place for you," he told her.

"The movies? But do you think I would have a chance in the movies?" Morris pulled on the inevitable cigar. "Why not? You're a beautiful girl and you've had stage experience. If I had anything to offer you myself I would, but I'm not producing any more shows this season and my casts are filled up. Like to have a screen test?"

"Yes," she said with animation. "I think it sounds like a good idea." Morris picked up the telephone and called Morrie Lieftman. Lieftman would be glad to give this Kennedy girl a screen test. Next morning at ten, he'd read about her.

Who hadn't? Carol thought rue-fully when she heard that. Morris was the only person who hadn't referred to the disastrous trip abroad, and she was grateful to him. Carol had her screen test and learned that she screened perfectly. Morris sent for her and showed her the contract he had procured for her. She looked at it apathetically.

"Do I have to sign now?" she asked. "No hurry," he answered, "but why not?"

Carol put the contract in her pocket. She would have a lawyer look it over and sign in a few days. She was anxious to get it over with, anxious to get out of New York, away from the memories it would always hold for her.

Her uncle told her that Humbolt had taken Miranda's case over and concurred with their opinion that Dr. Harding's advice must be called upon. He told Carol to hold herself in readiness to be called upon as a witness. He was optimistic. Miranda was in good hands, Humbolt had told her. Carol breathed a sigh of relief when she heard that. She wished that Owen might know, but she didn't want to call him again ever.

She was out much during those days. She dined before coming home and then seldom returned before eleven at night. If Owen had telephoned her, she did not know it; mostly she did not want to know that he hadn't.

She died in splendor with Uncle Howard, wearing the pearls he had given her, sipping his fine old wines and enjoying the flavor of his anecdotes of people long since gone.

She dined with Mary and heard all the gossip that had accumulated since her departure. Owen's and Kathy's broken engagement was no news. It had long been expected, and did Carol know that Kathy was going to marry some Frenchman? Carol didn't, but she thought for one passing moment of Dickie and what she might be facing. Isobel and John were having a baby and Isobel had gone simply dotty over the idea.

"How swell," Carol said. "I'm going down to that French shop and buy scads of things and drive up and see her."

"I thought you were going to Hollywood?" Mary said. "Hollywood can wait. I've got to see Isobel."

"I wish you'd tell me what the mystery is about you, Carol. Something it's all mixed up with Isobel. One day you come into the office looking like Mrs. Schoolmarm herself and the next day you blossom out into a beauty. What had Isobel said about it?"

"Nothing," said Carol. "It was all

Gary's doing. By the way, where is Gary? I sort of expected to hear from him. If he doesn't know I'm back in New York, he's the only person I know of lacking that information."

"He's not in New York," Mary answered. "Gary seems to have fallen in love. He's been in Florida since the middle of February. Helen Lynch seems to be the inspiration. I don't think you know her."

No, Carol didn't know her, but she felt a trifle let down. "Gary was faithfully devoted to you, wasn't he?"

"No. We were only good friends. We amused each other. Carol stabbed the olive in her glass. "Say 'hello' and 'goodbye' to him if you see him for me."

"Any exciting love affairs in Europe?" Mary wanted to know.

A swift picture of Dickie's laughing face rose in Carol's mind. "Not one," she said, looking at Mary with one of those could-you-believe-it glances.

"I don't understand you. You must be made of ice. It will be just your luck to go completely gaga over a movie actor when you get to Hollywood."

"I'll tell you, Mary. I cherish a secret passion for Clark Gable."

"He's not your type at all, Carol. I always thought Kathy's stern young medico was the type of man for you."

"Why?" Carol asked coolly. "I don't know. Just one of those instinctive things I guess, and probably the association of ideas. Somebody told me they'd seen you with him a couple of times." Carol wondered if Kathy had heard about those dinners they had had.

Morris telephoned; would Carol sign the contract? She was wanted on the coast. She told him she couldn't leave for a few days, she was waiting to be called in Miranda's case.

The call came that same night but it came from a surprising source. "Good evening, Miss Kennedy," a courteous voice said to her over the wire, "this is Horton Van Cleave."

"Yes, Mr. Van Cleave," Carol could feel her teeth chattering.

"Miss Kennedy, I have something I should like to talk over with you privately. I know that it is your wish to help my aunt. I should like to come to your home at nine o'clock tonight."

"A - - - all right," she said at last. "I'll expect you at nine."

Alone? Carol did not want to be alone with Horton Van Cleave. (TO BE CONTINUED)

Poems That Live

WHERE LIES THE LAND

Where lies the land to which the ship would go?

Far, far ahead, is all her seamen know.

And where the land she travels from? Away,

Far, far behind, is all that they can say.

On sunny noons upon the deck's smooth face,

Linked arm in arm, how pleasant here to pace;

Or, o'er the stern reclining, watch below

The foaming wake far widening as we go.

On stormy nights, when wind northwesterly rave,

How proud a thing to fight with wind and wave!

The dripping sailor on the reeling mast

Exults to bear, and scorns to wish it past.

Where lies the land to which the ship would go?

Far, far ahead, is all her seamen know.

And where the land she travels from? Away,

Far, far behind, is all that they can say.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. A. SHEPARD, Famous Bridge Teacher

BUSINESS DOUBLES

BUSINESS doubles are those intended to collect a penalty. These include a double of: (1) Two No Trumps, (2) 4 of a major suit, (3) 5 of a minor suit, (4) any call after doubler's partner either has bid or doubled. (5) any call after the doubler has previously overbid an adversary. All other doubles are informative, asking doubler's partner to bid, unless he can defeat the doubled contract for greater gain than may be expected from any responsive bid.

A "free double" is one made of a bid high enough to game without the doubled value of tricks. A "forced double" is one of a call so low that it can not go game unless the contract at doubled value is fulfilled. Be careful of making forced doubles. Be confident that the contract will be defeated at least two tricks.

Few players double often enough, allowing a large percentage of impossible contracts to go undoubted. Unless something like 1 in 6 doubles fail to defeat, you are not doubling often enough, losing hundreds of points through timidity.

Never double a contract unless either you are willing to double a shift or confident that partner will do so. If able to assist partner, do so at least once before doubling for a penalty of only moderate value. If able to resist, do not double unless confident that penalties will exceed the value of a possible game for your side. Of course either partner should double as soon as a penalty will pay better than further bidding. Be conservative in estimating partner's defensive tricks. Unless partner opens bidding he seldom shows any specific number of quick tricks. If his opening bid is no trump he should be able to win 3 tricks, but do not count upon him for more than 2 defensive tricks in case he makes an opening suit call. If either partner or opponents strongly bid 2-suiters it always is questionable whether partner's opening bid will produce more than a single defensive trick.

In case you and partner are very long in a suit, you may fail to hold a single defensive trick therein. Trump strength in opponents' suit is required to safely double the holder of a strong two-suiter or the maker of a pre-emptive suit call.

South plays 6-No Trumps. The opening lead is the J of spades. Before Monday see how many tricks can be made against the best subsequent defense.

DIET AND HEALTH

Bright Children Shown Sturdier Than Their Mates

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WHAT KIND of a person will make the most intelligent school child? Is there any way to correlate the physical health of the child with his work in school?

Well, a number of school physicians seem to think so. Working on the basis of anthropometric studies, these lead us to the common-sense conclusion that the more stocky and normal the body is, the better the mental capacity of the individual.

Conclusions after studying nearly 15,000 Minneapolis school children are:

1. The flat-chested children are taller and heavier than the deep-chested children.
2. There appears to be a definite correlation between the shape of the chest and intelligence in children.
3. The flat-chested children have, on the average, better school grades.
4. Therefore, it is evident that the flat-chested children are, on the average, taller, heavier, and display a higher degree of intelligence.

SALISBURY STEAKS

We appreciate a letter from R. W. R., as follows:

"I am particularly interested in your article in a recent issue; and, may I be permitted to say the 'Salisbury Steaks' originated many years prior to 1895."

In the spring of 1883 I was the victim of several severe hemorrhages, which our family physician attributed to the rupture of a blood vessel in the stomach, as I recall it. In the fall of that year I consulted the late Alfred K. Hills, M. D., of New York City, an eminent homeopathic physician, who put me on a diet similar to "Salisbury's" which had attained much notoriety at that time.

"For all of twelve months my daily program was about a pint of hot water half hour before breakfast; mid-forenoon; mid-afternoon; and upon retiring; for the morning, noon and evening meal ONLY breakfast or chopped beef."

"As I have passed my seventy-ninth birthday, may I not be justified for having the feeling that this treatment was most beneficial to me?"

D. A. R. Meets at Home Of Mrs. Paul Cromley

Interesting Program of Musical Numbers and Paper

Twenty-six members and one guest enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs. Paul Cromley of Ashville Tuesday evening when she was hostess at the November meeting of the Pickaway Plains chapter Daughters of the American Revolution.

The reading from the D.A.R. ritual, the Pledge of Allegiance, and the regular chapter exercises opened the meeting with Mrs. G. F. Hunsicker, regent, presiding. She read a timely Thanksgiving message.

Two vocal numbers by Mrs. James P. Moffitt with Miss Abbe Clarke at the piano were "Night is Gone and Day is Here" and "Sweet Song of Long Ago."

Mrs. Charles Pugsley, chairman of magazines, urged all those who wish to keep up with the work of Ohio chapters, to subscribe for the different D. A. R. magazines.

Miss Alice Ada May, chairman of National Defense, gave a short interesting talk and read passages from communistic literature.

The chapter voted to buy flags to be placed in each room at the High-st school building and instead of the usual D. A. R. Christmas party decided that members should make a contribution to establish a milk fund for undernourished school children in the local schools.

The paper of the evening, "Legends of Many Flags," was ably prepared and read by Mrs. Henry S. Lewis. It was both interesting and instructive. Quoting the opening sentence:

"The flag as it is known today is the result of many centuries of development. In the dawn of civilization man felt the need of a token to distinguish family from family, and tribe from tribe, and standards emblematic of the nations."

She then traced the ancestry of each country's flag, and touched upon the flags that each State in the United States have adopted. It was interesting to learn that as early as 1787 Delaware adopted a flag, and that New Hampshire was the last state in the union to adopt a flag, in 1932.

The closing musical numbers arranged by Miss Mary Radcliffe, music chairman, were two vocal duets by Mrs. Moffitt and Mrs. Harry Heffner. They sang "The Swallow" and "Wings of Songs," and two solos, "Peacock" and "Silver Star," by Mrs. Heffner.

Assisting Mrs. Cromley in entertaining were Mrs. Seymour Miller, Mrs. W. O. Dountz, and Mrs. George Stoker.

D.U.V. Inspection

Mrs. Beatrice Vogle of Chillicothe, district deputy of the Daughters of the Union Veterans was the inspecting officer at the annual inspection meeting of the Catherine Wolfley Hedges tent D.U.V. Tuesday evening in Memorial hall.

She complimented Mrs. Charles Stoffer, president, and her corps of officers on their excellent work. Forty members and several Chillicothe visitors were present for the ritualistic work and the business session during which it was decided to have the market and fancy work sale the first week in December.

A social hour followed the ritualistic work. The dining room where refreshments were served under the chairmanship of Miss Ada Hammel, was decorated with patriotic colors. Red, white and blue candles in black holders lighted the tables and at each cover was a favor of a chocolate turkey. Clever place cards of turkeys were used. Mrs. L. E. Miller was chairman of the dining room committee.

Mrs. Smith Honored

Mrs. Turney Weldon, S. Court-st., entertained the members of her bridge club at her home Tuesday evening for the pleasure of Mrs. Donald Smith of Toledo.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith have been visiting her mother, Mrs. C. E. Groce, S. Court-st., for several days and left Wednesday morning to spend the winter in Coral Gables, Fla.

Three tables of contract bridge were in play at the party and favor for top score went to Mrs. Hildeburn Jones. Refreshments were served after the game.

Conservation League

The home of Mrs. John Bragg, Montclair-ave, was the scene of the bi-monthly meeting of the Child Conservation league Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Clark Will, president, was in charge of the business session during which Mrs. Glen Geib gave a report of the earing tests being conducted in the city schools by the Kiwanis club and the league.

Today's Recipe

Halibut en Casserole—One pound halibut steak, boiling water, one-half pound mushrooms cut in halves, three tablespoons butter, one tablespoon flour one and one-fourth cups warm milk, bread crumbs, salt and pepper. Bring to a boil enough water to cover fish, add a pinch of salt and cook fish in this for ten minutes. Drain off water and break fish in small pieces, removing all skin and bones. Sauté mushrooms in one tablespoon of the butter. Meanwhile make cream sauce with remaining butter and flour, milk and dash of salt and pepper, stirring constantly. Cook until thick and remove alternate fish and mushrooms in layers. Pour cream sauce over mixture and top with bread crumbs. Bake in 350-degree oven 30 minutes or until well browned.

Spice Cake—One cup brown sugar, one-half cup lard, two eggs, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon each allspice and cloves, one-half cup molasses, one-half cup hot water, two and one-half cups flour, one teaspoon baking soda, a little salt. Bake in layers.

Sour Cream Frosting—One cup white sugar, one cup brown sugar, one cup sour cream, dash salt, one-half teaspoon vanilla. Put sugars and cream into saucepan and heat slowly, stirring constantly until sugar is dissolved and boiling point is reached. Cover and simmer gently ten minutes. Remove cover and let boil gently to a stage, 250 degrees.

Remove from heat and cool slightly, to 150 degrees. Sprinkle with salt and vanilla and beat until creamy. Spread immediately on cake and garnish with large, perfect walnut meats.

Mashed Potato Hash

Three cups cold mashed potatoes, one and one-half cups cold beef, ground; three tablespoons butter, one tablespoon lard, salt and pepper to taste. In a skillet melt the butter and lard together. When it is hot and perhaps a wee bit brown pat in the potatoes. Over this scatter the ground beef and season to taste with salt and pepper. Keep turning the potatoes as they brown. Fold as for an omelet and serve with chili sauce. Serves four.

WALISA POSTS $5,000 MORE BOND IN FEDERAL COURT

ARMS CHARGES DENIED TODAY; GOES ON TRIAL

Corwin-St Man Pleads Innocent to Illegal Ownership of Firearms

Roy Walisa, E. Corwin-st, appeared in federal court again today, denied charges, put up another $5,000 bond, and was freed. He appeared charged with possessing firearms illegally transferred and with possessing firearms not registered. He was indicted last week.

Walisa's hearing was before U. S. District Judge Robert Nevin, who did not set a trial date. He is expected to take this action, however, within the next few days. The local man was represented by Attorney W. B. Bartels of Columbus, former assistant U. S. district attorney.

Next Monday Walisa will again face the court in a hearing charging conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws. He is under $5,000 bond after a denial of this charge.

A free country is one where 90 per cent of the voters obey rules demanded by the 10 per cent who scare congress.

Olsen's Wife Returns as Guest Star on Bernie Program; Moscow on Radio Today

A popular star returned to the radio Tuesday evening when Ethel Shutta appeared as guest star on Ben Bernie's program over WLW. Miss Shutta is the wife of George Olsen, noted dance band leader. She has been the star in many musical productions and her singing of "Rock-a-bye Moon," "Cross-eyed Kelly," "Little German Band" and "Hey, Sailor", have gained her quite a reputation.

It seems too bad that so many fine programs are found on the air at the same hour. Of course, unless one has two radios, he can listen to only one at a time. This sad state of affairs comes up Thursday evening at 9 when Death Valley days, Walter O'Keefe and his Caravan, and The Show Boat all are aired at the same time. The former program is always interesting and has its followers, the Caravan featuring O'Keefe, Glen Gray's music and Ted Husing is also popular, but the Show Boat program is the best on the list, this column believes, with Lanny Ross, Frank McIntyre, Clyde Barrie and Gus Haenschen providing the entertainment.

An outstanding program today was from Moscow when the Twenty-fifth anniversary commemorating the death of Count Leo Tolstoy was aired. It was on the air at 9 a. m. over NBC with special music also presented.

HUNSICKER FOR AGE PENSIONS IN HOUSE VOTE

Representative Casts Ballot Against Restoring Property Clause to Act

By Columbus News Service
COLUMBUS, Nov. 20—Applicants for old pensions in Pickaway-co will not be required to transfer their property in trust to the state, if the Senate concurs in a bill passed yesterday by the House of Representatives.

By a vote of 82 to 23, the House defeated an amendment offered by Rep. W. P. Van Ness (R) Champain-co, to restore the property clause in the bill making Ohio's old age pension law conform to the national security act. Mr. Van Ness argued that the passage of his amendment would penalize thrift as contended by numerous members, but would penalize the heirs of the recipients who should be taking care of their aged relatives during their lives.

However, a section remains in the law which gives the state a right to sue the estate of any deceased recipient of an old age pension for the amounts paid him by the state plus four per cent interest.

Hunsicker for Pensioners

In the vote on the property clause Rep. Clark K. Hunsicker (D) of Circleville cast his vote against retaining the clause in the bill.

The House voted to make the new bill effective January 1, 1937, and then passed the conformity bill as an emergency measure. Only one dissenting vote was cast on the measure, that by Rep. Ed King, (R) Vinton-co. The bill qualifies the state to receive federal grants for pension payments when Congress appropriates the necessary funds, and raises the maximum payments from $25.00 per month to $30.00.

Henry J. Berroddin, chief of the Division of Aid for the Aged estimated that the monthly average payment, now at slightly more than $15 would be increased to approximately $18 when federal funds become available.

The striking out of the property clause will also increase the number of applications, members said, since a number of persons owning small parcels of property have hesitated to apply for aid for fear of losing their homes.

165 TO RECEIVE WORK ON SEWER, ROAD PROJECTS

of the road. The last project covers the balance of the road extending from the Saltercreek-twp line to Route 56. Both of the projects were listed at $10,180 each. The county share is $2,220 on each. Eighty men will be employed on both projects which include ditching, grading and graveling. Officials hope to have this second road project in operation next week.

Others Not Reported

The local office reports no information has been received on the eastward storm sewer project, planned by the city to eliminate the box stone sewer now in use, and the extension of sewers in that section of the city.

Word was received by the office that three projects listed for women relief employables had been rejected and in their place a sewing project was substituted. This project, it is understood, hinges on the approval of the county commissioners. The sewing project covers the repair of clothing for needy.

One of the projects rejected by WPA for women labor was the repairing of school books. WPA officials contended this work was a part of the school's routine business.

The office reported 10 projects are now in operation in the county and the total men employed is 260. More men are to be added to a number of these projects as they gain headway and from all indications the release of the last three projects will consume all of the county's relief employables.

MAN HELD AS SUSPECT

County officers were notified at noon Wednesday a suspect had been arrested and was held at Mansfield for identification on a forgery charge.

The officers reported they believed the man held was wanted here for passing a forged check on Denny Pickens.

From the way the game is going at present, it looks very much as though good old Ethiopia's goal posts are in danger.

DELINQUENT TAX IS BEING PAID; MONEY OVERDUE

Decrease of $29,000 on County Books Shown; Dargusch Makes Statement

A decrease of over $29,000 in old tax delinquencies is shown in the 1934 tax according to figures released Monday.

In 1933 the old delinquent taxes amounted to $183,748.32. During the 1934 collection $75,971.56 was paid on these delinquencies, reducing the total to $107,776.76.

Delinquencies for the 1934 collection amounted to $46,689.27, officials reported making the total delinquencies $154,466.03 at the close of the 1934 collection.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20—(INS)—Pointedly observing that there is due the counties of Ohio some $200,000,000 in delinquent taxes, Carlton S. Dargusch, vice chairman of the state tax commission, today advocated the collection of these unpaid taxes from those able to pay before new taxes are imposed.

"The attempt of the subdivisions of the state to pass the buck to the state is no solution of the problem either for those upon relief or for the taxpayer," said Dargusch.

Not On Solution
The vice chairman was discussing tax delinquencies in the light of direct relief being turned over to the counties after the federal government discontinues cash contributions Dec. 1.

Governor Davey, in his latest radio address, had indicated that passage of the Carey Act, permitting the counties to issue $15,000,000 in poor relief bonds to be retired by the state from the utilities excise tax, would adequately finance relief.

Approved Required
Dargusch agreed that it would in some counties where voters approve the bond issues, but pointed out that in others, even though the state is to retire the bonds, they cannot be issued without approval at the polls. Some difficulty has been encountered in the latter cases.

But, pursuing his demand that the counties be more energetic in the collection of unpaid taxes, Dargusch said that if they did this, no further state aid for relief would be necessary at the present time.

He said this assertion applied particularly to Cuyahoga county, which has been most insistent that the state assume the relief burden.

ESTRANGED ACTRESS, HUSBAND OWE TAXES
HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 20—(INS)—Barbara Stanwyck, film star, and Frank Fay, her estranged husband, each owe the United States government $22,061 on their income taxes, it was claimed today as Nat Rogan, district director of internal revenue filed liens against the couple and six other film luminaries.

The other defendants are Phillips Holmes, $705; Marshall Neilan, director, $754.44; Louis Monte Bell, director, $2,313.55 and his wife Betty Lawford Bell $2,811.15; Cliff "Ukelele Ike" Edwards, $40.24, and his wife, Nancy Edwards, $48.44.

MEXICO MUCH TOO EXCITING FOR VILLA'S DAUGHTER

Chieftain's Descendant Visits Land She Left as Child—and Hastens Away When Nerve-Wracking Incidents Occur

MEXICO, D. F., Nov. 20—Francisco Villa has been dead for 12 years now but to millions in this land of the Aztecs, he still rides the lonely mountain trails at night.

And out of the canyon lands, the imaginative hear the rollicking strains of "La Cucaracha" as his "army" cuts a swath through the country.

That is what Pancho's daughter recently learned when she came from her New York home to visit the haunts where her father, to the spit of bullets and the lash of machetes, won the land.

Her First Return

Miss Celia Villa, a dark Latin beauty who speaks English better than Spanish, expected a peaceful vacation. It was her first visit to her homeland. When only a child her mother had fled with her from the carnage of war to New Mexico.

Instead of quiet, however, she was mobbed by thousands when she landed at Balbuena airport. Her clothes were almost torn from her as police reserves fought with the crowds. Throngs lined the highways, shouting "Viva Pancho."

She had no sooner taken refuge in a hotel than bellboys began delivering threatening letters—notes from her father's enemies who warned that she, too, would be assassinated if she dared to take part in politics.

Plead for Another Joan
There were also other communications, surreptitiously delivered. They were from rebel chieftains who promised to make her another Joan of Arc if she would lend the magic name of Villa to their cause.

She learned, too, that she was being shadowed by the intelligence service of the Mexican army, and that a young officer, Captain Jorge Solis, had been assigned to watch her.

Whenever she appeared on the streets, crowds would gather. To thousands, she was a heroine but to others she was merely another Villa, a potential danger in a land where the word Villa is equivalent to Robin Hood.

A Poignant Threat
She attended a banquet given her by the men who had ridden with Francisco, and during the festivities, someone placed a dagger into her lap with a note, "Death to every Villa."

That was the end. The following day she departed for New York. "I went to Mexico simply as a traveler," she related. "I didn't know that my father still lived so intensely in the memories of his people—that to many he is yet a god and to a few, a devil."

"I never dreamed of becoming a girl Pancho but some thought that was my purpose. They believed I had come to unite the old Villistas and lead them as my father had done. It was ridiculous."

Hero of Motion Pictures
"The thrilling exploits of my father have been re-enacted in three Mexican motion pictures already this year. Almost every week in Mexico City, some magazine carries an article about him, and schools throughout the country are being named for him. Every tent company has a play about him in its repertoire."

"There have been other famous chieftains, such as Zapata, but their deeds have dimmed—perhaps because they never dared to slap the Colossus of the North and have a General Pershing come riding after them."

Questions and Answers

Please tell me the best way to remove cream stains from table linen.

Cream stains are objectionable first from the fact that a greasy film is usually left on the linen unless the stain has been thoroughly removed. Usually washing in cold water followed by a washing in warm soap suds will remove the most persistent cream stain. If this is not successful a solvent such as carbon tetrachloride or denatured alcohol will remove the last traces of the stain. The linen should be washed following the use of chemicals.

Can vegetables be cooked in the oven without baking them?

Oven cooking of vegetables is a time saving method which enables you to prepare the vegetables while the meat or dessert is cooking. Potatoes, carrots, peas, beets, turnips and green beans are especially good prepared this way. Pare the vegetables, add salt, pepper, a small amount of butter and 1/2 to 3/4 cup of water to 2 pounds of vegetables. Place the vegetables in oven pans that have flat lids if space is any consideration. The pans may be stacked if you wish. The vegetables steam in this method and have full nutritive value with all the juices retained.

Will you please give me some suggestions for table favors for Thanksgiving and Christmas?

Edible table favors meet with much approval and are suitable for place cards in most cases. Novel and original ideas produce the most amusement. Assemble these materials: marshmallows, toothpicks, gumdrops, jelly strings, cloves, spice drops, candy sticks and cinnamon hearts. Raisins, nuts and vegetable colorings also may come in handy in carrying out your ideas.

Kingston
Priscilla and John Alden are favorites for the Thanksgiving season. Make a cloak of brown crepe paper covering a cone of cardboard or stiff paper. Fasten a marshmallow to the small end of the cone, draw the facial features on it and place a hat made of black composition paper on the head. Priscilla wears a grey cloak with a white kerchief. Make over the same kind of cone. Her marshmallow head has a cap made with white crepe paper. Clothespin dolls of the same sort are easily made and are amusing to youngsters and adults alike.

A clever "turkey" may be created from a marshmallow, with the aid of a gumdrop stick for a neck, nuts for feet, a spice drop or a nut for a head, and snips of cranberry for beak and wattles.

There are innumerable animals you can create when the materials are before you and your imagination is given free rein.

OHIO NEEDS MORE CONCRETE ROADS

IF YOU KNEW WHAT I KNOW ABOUT ROAD MAINTENANCE COSTS

YOU'D DEMAND CONCRETE!

"AFTER you've spent years trying to keep so-called 'low-cost' roads in passable condition, it's a relief to get assigned to a stretch of concrete. Concrete is easy to maintain—saves the taxpayers real money."

Real money is right! Concrete roads cost $114 to $469 per mile per year less for surface maintenance than other pavements. Less to build than any other road of equal load carrying capacity. Less to drive on than lower type pavements.

Teacher Ousted, Students Whipped in Flag Row

CHARGES and counter-charges were tossed into the faces of Canonsburg, Pa., board of education over the swearing of allegiance to the American flag. Grace Estep, left, a teacher in the Canonsburg school, was discharged because she refused to salute the flag. Her brother and sister, both students at the school, were dismissed for the same reason. Meanwhile, four other teachers of the school were charged with assault and battery in allegedly whipping four students, shown above, when they refused to salute the flag. All refusing to salute the flag are members of Jehovah's Witnesses, a religious sect which teaches that allegiance to the flag is against the tenets of its religion.

SOLO Hears Program: MOVES TO BRING ITS END

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—(INS)—State Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg twirled his radio dial Monday night, tuned in on radio station WCLS, Joliet, listened intently to the premiere broadcast of the "Big House Review," a program to be aired twice weekly by inmates of the state prison.

A 35-piece band opened the program with Sousa's "Triumphal March," followed by "Time On My Hands," a dance tune.

By vote of the 5000-odd convicts, the theme tune of the band is "The Prisoner's Song," but the arrangement wasn't complete for last night's program.

Tenor Hale O'Reilly, serving a life term for the murder of Sheriff Jacob Wiggers of Rock Island, sang "10,000 Years From Now."

Rep. Schnackenberg waxed indignant today, declared: "I intend to find out from what appropriation funds are taken for these broadcasts. The idea of bringing murderers' voices into homes is unfitting."

Giant Shrinking

SCIENCE is mystified as to the cause of the shrinking of a circus giant, John Aasen, above, who is shrinking to normal size on a specially-built bed in a Los Angeles hospital. Aasen, 45, who was 8 feet 8 inches tall, and weighed 460 pounds six months ago, today weighs a mere 200. The giant's legs are said to be so weak he cannot walk. It is believed the glandular process which had brought about his unusual size, also is responsible for the sudden wasting away of his body.

The will was admitted to probate today.

"In view of conditions in Germany," the will read, "under which my beneficiaries residing there would not be able fully to control or remove their property or money, therefrom, I direct my executors not to pay the bequests to any of my devisees who may be residing in Germany at the time of my death."

The bequests, many of them amounting to more than $5,000 will be held in the United States in trust, until "conditions in Germany change."

MOSIER AT WORK ON ANALYSIS OF STATE'S LIQUOR FOR KENTUCKY

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20.—(INS)—Lieut. Gov. Harold G. Mosier, author of Ohio's state monopoly liquor legislation, today started work on an analysis of Ohio's liquor system at the request of The Kentucky Repeal and Regulation League.

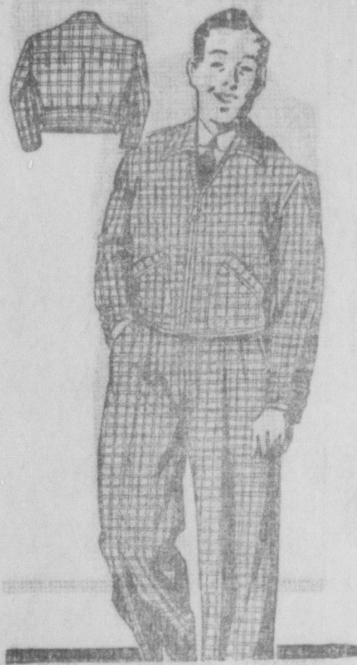

Mosier was asked to prepare for the Kentucky organization, which is considering proposed forms of liquor control following the state's repeal of state prohibition, a history of Ohio's liquor control program.

Mrs. Mary B. Zubrod, Louisville, Ky., an executive of the Kentucky organization, particularly asked Mosier to explain "faults in the Ohio system."

OHIO LIQUOR AGENTS ARREST 186 VIOLATORS

On 160 convictions, Ohio courts collected $12,785 in fines and imposed 2,426 days imprisonment. During the period, agents confiscated 14 stills and captured 16 transporters, 10 of them in the Cincinnati district where a concerted drive has been made against runners of Kentucky whiskey.

DEBUTANTE SCOFFS AT ROMANCE WITH GABLE

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(INS)—Miss Mary Taylor, the pretty society girl whose name had been linked romantically with that of Clark Gable since announcement of the screen star's separation from his wife, today revealed she had seen him only once in her life—and that was for only 15 minutes.

Laughing at the romance rumors, Miss Taylor told International News Service she met Gable for the first time at a dinner last week. She talked to him for only about 15 minutes and has not seen him since.

During that 15 minute conversation some newspaper photographers were at work, however, and when their pictures blossomed out in the nation's press the rumors—the funniest she had ever heard, Miss Taylor said—started.

Miss Taylor, who has blue eyes and a pretty, freckled nose, was called the "best looking debutante" in the society columns of 1932.

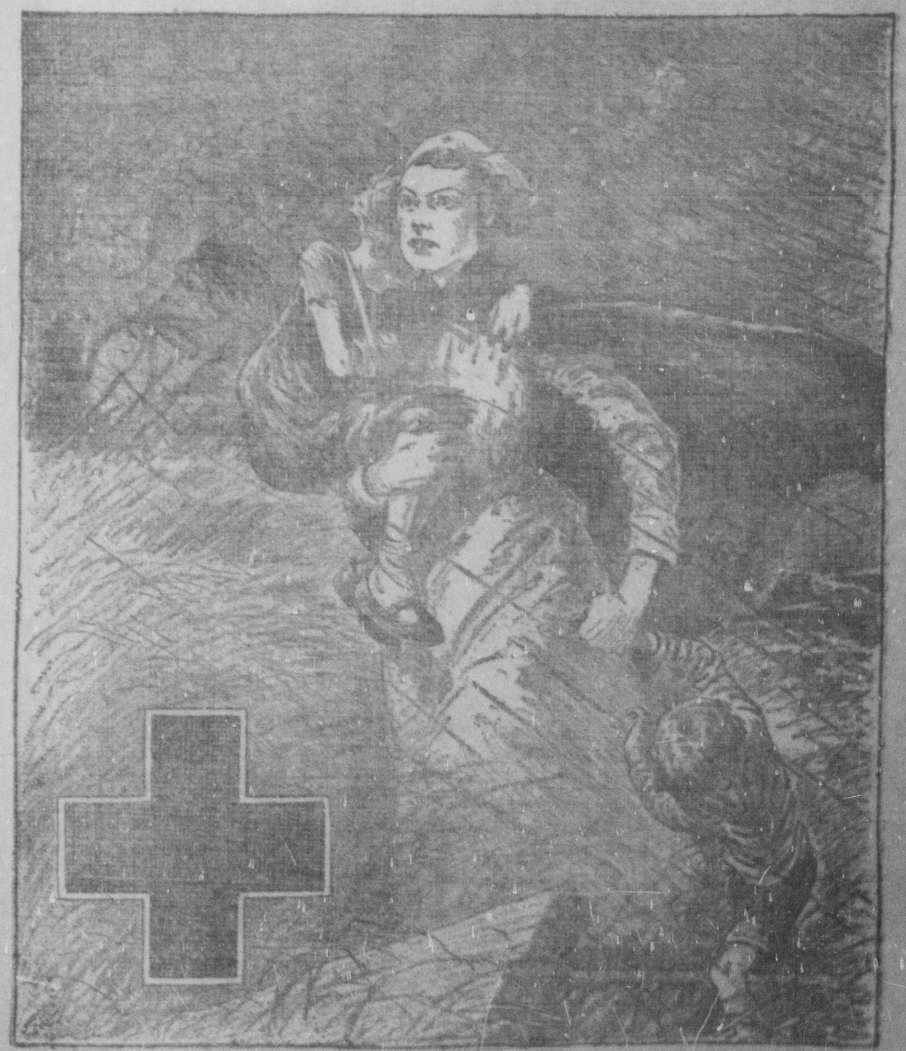

TOLEDO COUNCIL COMES TO AID OF GANG KILLER

TOLEDO, Nov. 20.—(INS)—Toledo's city council went to bat today for Jacob (Firetop) Sulkin, convicted of conspiracy in four gang murders here, who is sentenced to die in the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary.

The council adopted a resolution, by a vote of 15 to 5, urging Gov. Martin L. Davey to commute Sulkin's sentence to life imprisonment. The governor last week granted the prisoner a 60-day stay of execution for further consideration of his case.

Councilman Earl Caton declared the death penalty for Sulkin was unfair because his associates had escaped the chair.

Carey Bill for Relief Also

The senate and house today dug
out from under a deluge of taxation bills, rushed through action
on a drivers' license measure and
made haste to wind up the special session before the New Year.Ten measures, all bearing upon taxation for 1936, were tossed
into the House after the lower
body approved the Kane bill providing for a drivers' license, with a fee of 40 cents. The measure is almost identical to the Handley
bill, passed by the legislature during regular session but vetoed by Governor Davey because the fee of 25 cents, included in the bill, was too low in his opinion.The House also passed the Carey bill which makes Ohio laws
conform to provisions of the federal social security act. Major provision of the measure removes the requirement that Ohio old-age pension laws which require application to a local board of pensions to the state before becoming eligible for pensions. Advocated by the governor, this measure, sponsors predict, will enable
Ohio to obtain more than $8,000,-
000 under federal social security
distributions to states.

introducing a new state income
tax similar to his bill that passed

Buyers—Do you realize that the Federal Government has in the past few days approved contracts for the purchase of 41,000 acres of Ohio farm and timber lands? Do you realize that the wide awake speculators from the large industrial centers, also the up to the minute business men of our local communities, have been buying these central Ohio farms by the wholesale, and that the best of Ohio's best producing farm lands have become the property of this class of investors? Do you realize that it would be almost impossible to buy a single farm from any one of these late purchasers, regardless of the size of the profit you might offer them on their investment? AND WHY? These investors are fully aware of the fact that there is no other investment in the world today, as safe and sound where they can invest their capital, that will yield such large returns and afford them the chance for speculation the pride in ownership, and the satisfaction of mind as the money they have invested in these good old Ohio farms. I have listed for sale a large number of farms in every location in Central Ohio. The kind of a farm you would feel proud to own, ranging in size from 10 to 100 acre tracts, the very choicest of homes and investment lands, for sale at a price you can afford to pay, on easy terms and low interest rates. DRESBACH BUYS FOX FARM SITE; PLANS ACTIVITY

Station, Night Club, Riding Academy

Carson Dresbach, Kingston, who recently retired from the Scioto Live Stock Co., has purchased the Fox Farm property on Route 23, north of Chillicothe, and plans to build a filling station, operate a night club, install a riding academy and open a live stock market.

Mr. Dresbach said he would begin operations at once and hopes to have the live stock market going by next week. He did not state who would be associated with him at this time. It is understood Mr. Dresbach is forming a company and will operate three live stock markets in Ross-co.

The Fox Farm property was owned by Henry M. Redd and the heirs of John H. Gearhart, who was associated with Mr. Redd when they purchased the property from A. L. Turnipseed. Turnipseed purchased the property from the late Scott Harman.

In recent months the property had been rented to Frank R. Erdmann, who operated a tourist's home and party home under the name of Erd-Manor.

TOWER, TEST AVIATOR, OF HIS CRASH INJURY

DAYTON, Nov. 20—(INS)—Leslie Tower, 38, who piloted the ill-fated Boeing bomber here from Seattle and was severely burned when it crashed in a test flight on Oct. 30, was dead today.

He was the second flier to die of injuries. Few hours after the crash at Wilbur Wright field Maj. P. P. Hill succumbed. The other three men who figured in the destruction of the "flying fortress" are convalescing.

Pilot Tower's parents reside in Tolson, Mont. A brother, Hal, lives in Omaha and a sister, Ruth, in Helena, Mont.

TWO NEIGHBORS

By J. W. J.

The venerable John J. Brchmor, was my near and intimate neighbor for nearly twenty years. It has not been my good fortune in an entire life-time, to have known a kindlier or a finer citizen. His salient characteristics, were industry, frugality, honesty, respect for law and the Sabbath and an unflinching belief in the Bible. Born of German parentage, he was, nevertheless, a thorough-going American. He was a fundamentalist in both politics and reformation, for the modernist or his explorations into the unknown and unrevealed. He was a child of nature and above all things else in the world, he reveled in the development of plant life and the beauty and fragrance of the flowers of garden and field. Three or four days preceding his death, he was able to go for a brief walk into the little neighboring park across the street from his cottage home and for a few brief moments, as he had so often done, engage his neighbor in a last and pleasant conversation. Already, the impress of death was upon his brow. He was a-tremble and a-weary and turning his face homeward it was if he had in mind the appealing lines of the poet—

The way has been long, my Father and my soul
Longs for the rest and quiet of the goal;
While yet I journey thru this weary land
Keep me from wandering, Father,
take my hand
And thru this gloom,
Lead safely home Thy child.

For well on to a quarter of a century, it was my good fortune and pleasure to know intimately and confidentially, Noah G. Spangler. For several years, he and his good wife, were residents of my native town of Jackson from which point he superintended the operations of one of the large iron furnaces of that region, located some two miles west of the town and within a stone's throw, almost of the farm on which I was born and grew into manhood. Noah Spangler was a man of excellent parts and possessed many of the qualifications of real leadership. He had, also, executive ability of a high order. He was a man of excellent judgment. He possessed strong convictions of right and wrong and with them, the courage to maintain his convictions. In all movements for reform, he was an indefatigable worker. He was generous to a fault and unknown to most of his friends, he was a real philanthropist and benefactor. He was independent in politics and his religion consisted largely in the service he was able to render to others. After an absence of many years from his native town he returned with his wife to re-establish the home-life among the friends and acquaintances of earlier days; and but for an unfortunate automobile accident of several years ago, his life tenure might have been lengthened indefinitely. Noah Spangler's creed of life might have been summed up in these pertinent lines—

I hold, that man alone succeeds

Whose life is crowned with worthy deeds;
Who, battling 'gainst each seeming wrong,
Could meet disaster with a song;
Feel sure of victory in defeat
And rise refreshed the foe to meet;
Who only lives the world to bless,
Can never fail—he is success.

Green Is Speaker

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20—Perry C. L. Green, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, will deliver the opening address of the seventeenth annual convention of the cooperative farm organization Thursday, Nov. 21, at the Franklin-co Memorial Hall in Columbus. Mr. Green has been actively associated with the farm bureau movement since its inception in Ohio 17 years ago and became widely known for his sound judgement in agricultural matters.

CLARK TO LEAD ROGERS' GROUP

Funeral Director Seeks Money
for Memorial Fund

Fred C. Clark, S. Court - st, has been appointed local chairman of the Will Rogers Memorial Commission for Circleville. Earle Johnson of Cleveland, active state chairman of the Commission for Ohio announced today. John N. Garner, Vice President of the United States, is national chairman of the Commission.

Mr. Clark is now forming a local executive committee to conduct the campaign in Circleville and vicinity. Members of this committee will preside over sub-committees in charge of various aspects of the drive.

The object of the campaign, which started on November 4, Will Rogers' fifty-sixth birthday anniversary, and will extend to Thanksgiving Eve, is to obtain the largest possible number of gifts from those millions who admired the cowboy-humorist. Contributions may be made to any bank in the country. This is an arrangement unprecedented in the gathering of funds for charitable or humanitarian cause. Many newspapers will also accept contributions.

SENATE DELAYS OF CLINTON

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20—The senate finance committee today postponed action on a request of Clinton-co residents for a state appropriation of $50,000 to help in creating a lake on Cowans creek near Wilmington.

Members of the committee delayed action until major state problems have been considered after listening to protests against the lake appropriation.

Mrs. D. C. Austin, near Wilmington, spokesman for the group protesting the state grant, claimed the lake park is not necessary since the site is only a few miles from Fort Ancient state park in Warren county. She charged it is a commercial venture and claimed a majority of farmers owning land in the area are opposed to the project.

Other Clinton-co residents appearing against the proposal were: D. C. Austin, P. M. Chaplin, Harley Rapp, Ed Murphy, William Groves, Archie Sprague, George Sprague and C. W. Sewell.

GOOD LOOKING

Nearly everyone we ever heard of will contend that a one-dollar bill is handsome. Even a dime is good-looking and a nickel is not to be sneered at. But in the mind attuned to the practicalities of life and probably short on art, a five-dollar bill is just five times as handsome as a one-dollar bill, no matter how disappointed the engraver may be with his product. It is a matter of progressiveness, and those unusual persons who claim to have seen them assure us there can be no doubt about it; that the one-thousand-dollar bill is the one and only "handsomest ever," and that by and large it will retain its superiority in the real of beauty no matter what flights of fancy may be taken with the one-dollar bill.

RESULTS WILL TALK

FOR several years past, members of the legal profession have waxed eloquent over the purging of their ranks. Inspiring attacks have been directed toward ambulance chasers, legalistic racketeers and attorneys who connive with the underworld. That the moment for action, rather than mere words, has now arrived is plainly indicated by the following statement from former Justice William L. Ransom, president of the American Bar Association.

"The lawyers of America will appropriately be judged not by the vigor of the language which many lawyers use as to unworthy lawyers, but by the actual corrective results brought about in specific instances through the activity of the organized bar and the courts.

Will the American bar accept this challenge from its recognized leader? A somewhat skeptical and cynical lay public eagerly awaits the answer.

It is easy to remain friends. Just don't get interested in the same woman or the same dollar.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

How far will Great Britain go now on armaments? That is the question now since the Conservatives believe they have an election mandate.

To those who have been following the situation, the question creates great anxiety. The Tories are riding high. They will build the largest navy the world ever has seen. That is the view.

The cost—according to one English source—will be "scores of millions."

And the United States undoubtedly will keep up.

In the meantime, American liberals, alarmed, say that while vehement protests are heard over the millions spent for relief, no protests are heard for the millions that the United States is spending and will spend for armaments.

Of course, the plea is that what one country does, another must do.

The Tories won on that argument—"national defense"—in England.

HOW FAR?

The Roosevelt administration has some idea as to what the British intend to do.

A British source has it that the admiralty is believed to plan, for one thing, to build 12 capital ships at $40,000,000 apiece. (These are to replace outdated vessels.) That totals $480,000,000. That, however, is only the beginning.

There are to be many cruisers, destroyers, submarines, airplanes. No other country, except the United States, could find the money to build such a large fleet. The United States is expected to keep up, proportionately.

NO PLAN

The British Tories won the election with no plan. The irony of it was that both the Laborites and the Liberals had broad, concise programs. The Tories went into the election with a long, rambling emotional appeal for national defense—and that turned the trick.

But, now, in the sober morning after, British citizens are asking what the Conservatives really plan to do. For one thing, they made no promises for any definite social reforms. Social questions were swallowed up in the war emotionalism. But how far will the British cabinet go toward arming?

Will Britain try to outdo all the remaining countries of Europe in armaments?

And how high will that boost English taxes? There is no comeback now for the people—for as long as this parliament lasts—at least four or five years.

GERMANY

Many interesting developments have stemmed from the purchase of $19,000 worth of German steel by a subcontractor on New York's Tri-Borough bridge, being built with PWA money.

GUFFEY ACT FORCES USE OF CODE COAL UNDER ALL FEDERAL CONTRACTS

WASHINGTON—A bombshell is waiting behind the scenes of hundreds of business concerns which sell goods and services to the Government.

The Guffey Coal Act requires Government agencies to buy coal only from companies which are operating under the code provided in the Guffey Act. Few know, however, that there is a section (14-a) in the Act—slipped in just before it passed—that bars the awarding of Government contracts to all industrial concerns that do not use code coal.

Under the spurring of the Bituminous Coal Board, the Procurement Division of the Treasury is moving to put this sweeping clause into effect. Several days ago it held a secret conference of Government purchasing agents to discuss the framing of a new contract form for Federal buying.

The effect of this provision is far-reaching in the extreme.

It means that concerns selling shoes, shirts, food to the Army and Navy; utilities supplying electricity to post offices; building contractors, steel makers, warship builders, railroads carrying mail; in short, practically all industry must use code coal or do without Government business.

The leverage this specification gives the Coal Board in forcing coal operators to sign the code is terrific—which is exactly why it was eased into the law. The effect of the clause is to cut off non-complying coal companies from a vast volume of business, something which few will, or can, long resist.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Ex-Vice President Charley Curtis is irked at the way the Republican high command is leaving him out of its secret powwows. . . . Despite wintry weather, Secretary Ickes bends over his desk in shirt sleeves. . . . Secretary Wallace, who was a corn breeder before he came to Washington frequently asks foreigners in the Capital to procure for him specimens of the corn of their country. Latest request was made of Enrique Lozada, handsome Secretary of the Bolivian Legation. . . . Interior Department workers are intrigued by names they run across in administering the Virgin Islands; Careening Cove, Flamingo Point, Mermaids Chair, Watermelon Bay, Mangrove Lagoon, Chocolate Hole, and Threadneedle Point.

A correspondent reports that Il Duce lead a meticulously careful life, maintaining regular sleeping habits, a strict diet and safeguarding himself from the severities of the weather. Wonder if the boys he sends to Ethiopia fare as well?

If people drank during prohibition, to show they couldn't be bossed, who is bossing them now?

But no matter how free the opportunity, a good plow horse can't win a hurdle race.

The Romance Racket

MARIE BLIZARD

CHAPTER 57

THE REST of that evening was passed on a false note. Owen felt to silence and Carol paced the rapid tempo with her small talk but, when he had gone, she threw herself on her bed and cried as if indeed it was her heart was breaking as indeed it was. Owen's proposal was a cruel mockery of all that she ever dreamed. For that one blind instant she had thought he was confessing his love for her, but a glance at his set face, his unhappy eyes and the stilted phrases of his proposal told her the whole story. He felt that he had committed her by appearing that night and he was doing the "honorable" thing.

She might have had a chance to win him if this had not happened, but now that chance was gone forever and she must put him out of her life and her thoughts.

Meanwhile, Owen Craig, alone with his thoughts, found Carol's golden head rising behind him and the midnight sky. Little lovable indications in her voice echoed in his ears. The tender, thoughtful gestures she made as naturally as she breathed came out in the parade of his memories and he cursed himself for a blundering fool. Of course, a girl as fine and intelligent as Carol would have seen through his stupid action. She was fine and intelligent and he must treat her so. His thoughts brightened and he found himself swinging along toward his own apartment with a jaunty step.

Carol went to see Manfred Morris. If she was to fill her life with substitute excitement, she could think of no better way than in the theater. "You're thinner," Morris said to her, "and you look as though you needed a rest."

"I don't want a rest. I want excitement. I want something to do from the time I wake up until I fall in bed exhausted at night."

"Hollywood is the place for you," he told her.

"The movies? But do you think I would have a chance in the movies?" Morris pulled on the inevitable cigar. "Why not? You're a beautiful girl and you've had stage experience. If I had anything to offer you myself I would, but I'm not producing any more shows this season and my casts are filled up. Like to have a screen test?"

"Yes," she said with animation. "I think it sounds like a good idea."

Morris picked up the telephone and called Morris Liefman. Liefman would be glad to give this Kennedy girl a screen test. Next morning at ten, he'd read about her.

Who hadn't? Carol thought rue-

fully when she heard that Morris was the only person who hadn't referred to the disastrous trip abroad, and she was grateful to him.

Carol had her screen test and learned that she screened perfectly. Morris sent for her and showed her the contract he had procured for her. She looked at it apathetically.

"Do I have to sign now?" she asked.

"No hurry," he answered, "but why not?"

Carol put the contract in her pocket. She would have a lawyer look it over and sign in a few days. She was anxious to get it over with, anxious to get out of New York, away from the memories it would always hold for her.

Her uncle told her that Humbolt had taken Miranda's case over and concurred with their opinion that Dr. Harding's advice must be called upon. He told Carol to hold herself in readiness to be called upon as a witness. He was optimistic. Miranda was in good hands, Humbolt had told her. Carol breathed a sigh of relief when she heard that. She wished that she could know, but she didn't want to call him again ever.

She was out much during those days. She dined before coming home and then seldom returned before eleven at night. If Owen had telephoned her, she did not know it; mostly she did not want to know that he hadn't.

She dined in splendor with Uncle Howard, wearing the pearls he had given her, sipping his fine old wines and enjoying the flavor of his anecdotes of people long since gone.

She dined with Mary and heard all the gossip that had accumulated since her departure. Owen's and Kathy's broken engagement was no news. It had long been expected, and did Carol know that Kathy was going to marry some Frenchman? Carol didn't, but she thought for one passing moment of Dickie and what she might be facing. Isobel and John were having a baby and Isobel had gone simply dotty over the idea.

"How swell," Carol said. "I'm going down to that French shop and buy beads of things and drive up and see her."

"I thought you were going to Hollywood?" Mary said.

"Hollywood can wait. I've got to see Isobel."

"I wish you'd tell me what the mystery is about you, Carol. Somehow it's all mixed up with Isobel. One day you come into the office looking like Mrs. Schoolmarm herself and the next day you blossom out into a beauty. What had Isobel to do with it?"

"Nothing," said Carol. "It was all

Gary's doing. By the way, where's Gary? I sort of expected to hear from him. If he doesn't know I'm back in New York, he's the only person I know of lacking that information."

"He's not in New York," Mary answered. "Gary seems to have fallen in love. He's been in Florida since the middle of February. Helen Lynch seems to be the inspiration. I don't think you know her."

"No, Carol didn't know her, but she felt a trifle let down."

"Gary was faithfully devoted to you, wasn't he?"

"Any exciting love affairs in Europe?" Mary wanted to know.

A swift picture of David's laughing face rose in Carol's mind.

"Not one," she said, looking at Mary with one of those could-you-believe-it glances.

"I don't understand you. You must be made of ice. It will be just your luck to go completely gaga over a movie actor when you get to Hollywood."

"I'll tell you, Mary. I cherish a secret passion for Clark Gable."

"He's not your type at all, Carol. I always thought Kathy's stern young medico was the type of man for you."

"Why?" Carol asked coolly.

"I don't know. Just one of those instinctive things I guess, and probably the association of ideas. Somebody told me they'd seen you with him a couple of times." Carol wondered if Kathy had heard about those dinners they had had.

The call came that same night and it came from a surprising source.

"Good evening, Miss Kennedy," a courteous voice said to her over the wire, "this is Horton Van Cleave."

"Yes, Mr. Van Cleave," Carol could feel her teeth chattering.

"Miss Kennedy, I have something I should like to talk over with you privately. I know that it is your wish to help my aunt. I should like to come to your home at nine o'clock tonight."

"A - - - all right," she said at last, "I'll expect you at nine."

Alone? Carol didn't want to be alone with Horton Van Cleave.

Poems That Live

WHERE LIES THE LAND

Where lies the land to which the ship would go?

Far, far ahead, is all her seamen know.

And where the land she travels from? Away.

Far, far behind, is all that they can say.

On sunny noons upon the deck's smooth face,

Linked arm in arm, how pleasant here to pace;

Or, o'er the stern reclining, watch below

The foaming wake far widening as we go.

On stormy nights, when wind northwesterns rave,

How proud a thing to fight with wind and wave!

The dripping sailor on the reeling mast

Exults to bear, and scorns to wish it past.

Where lies the land to which the ship would go?

Far, far ahead, is all her seamen know.

And where the land she travels from? Away.

Far, far behind, is all that they can say.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. A. SHEPARD, Famous Bridge Teacher

BUSINESS DOUBLES

BUSINESS doubles are those intended to collect a penalty. These include a double of: (1) Two No Trumps, (2) 4 of a major suit, (3) 5 of a minor suit, (4) any call after doubler's partner either has bid or doubled, (5) any call after the doubler has previously overbid an adversary. All other doubles are informative, asking doubler's partner to bid, unless he can defeat the doubled contract for greater gain than may be expected from any responsive bid.

A "free double" is one made of a bid high enough to go game without the doubled value of tricks. A "forced double" is one of a call so low that it can not go game unless the contract at doubled value is fulfilled. Be careful of making forced doubles. Be confident that the contract will be defeated at least two tricks.

Few players double often enough, allowing a large percentage of impossible contracts to go undoubled. Unless something like 1 in 6 doubler often enough, losing hundreds of points through timidity.

Never double a contract unless either you are willing to double a shift or confident that partner will do so. If able to assist partner, do so at least once before doubling for a penalty of only moderate value. If able to rely on partner's confidence that penalties will exceed the value of a possible game for your side. Of course, if partner should double as soon as a penalty will pay better than further bidding. Be conservative in estimating partner's defensive tricks. Unless partner opens bidding, he seldom shows any specific number of quick tricks. If his opening bid is no trump he should be able to win 3 tricks, but do not count upon him for more than 2 defensive tricks in case he makes an opening suit call. If either partner or opponents strongly bid, suiters it always is questionable whether partner's opening bid will produce more than a single defensive trick.

In case you and partner are very long in a suit, you may fail to hold a single defensive trick therein. Trump strength in opponents' suit is required to safely double the holder of a strong two-suiter or the maker of a pre-emptive suit call.

DIET AND HEALTH

Bright Children Shown Sturdier Than Their Mates

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WHAT KIND of a person will make the most intelligent school child? Is there any way to correlate the physical health of the child with his work in school?

Well, a number of school physicians seem to think so. Working on the basis of anthropometric studies, these lead us to the common-sense conclusion that the more stocky and normal the body is, the better the mental capacity of the individual.

Many years ago Porter found from a study of St. Louis school children that "Children who possess more than ordinary power of mental labor, as measured by their progress in their studies, are heavier, taller and larger in girth of chest than their less gifted companions of the same age."

Francis Galton, in his book, "Hereditary Genius," pointed out that men of genius tend to be well developed physically. "A collection of living magistrates in various branches of intellectual achievement is always a feast to the eyes; being, as they are, such massive, vigorous, capable looking animals."

Interesting Study

An interesting study is that of Gowin on a number of American executives. He found, for instance, that bishops were 1.8 inches taller and 17 pounds heavier than preachers in small towns.

The study of school children is based on the anatomical fact that the normal healthy adult chest is flat. The chest of tuberculosis, contrary to common belief, is deep.

These determinations of the thomatic index are made by measuring the depth of the chest and the width. At birth the chest is almost round, but by the age of five 87 per cent of the flattening out process has already taken place. Children from better environmental districts are not only taller and heavier, but have a flatter type of chest.

Conclusions after studying nearly 15,000 Minneapolis school children are:

1. The flat-chested children are taller and heavier than the deep-chested children.
2. There appears to be a definite correlation between the shape of the chest and intelligence in children.
3. The flat-chested children have, on the average, better school grades.
4. Therefore, it is evident that the flat-chested children are, on the average, taller, heavier, and display a higher degree of intelligence.

SALISBURY STEAKS.

We appreciate a letter from R. W. R., as follows:

"I am particularly interested in your article in a recent issue; and, may I be permitted to say the 'Salisbury Steaks' originated many years prior to 1895."

In the spring of 1883 I was the victim of several severe hemorrhages, which our family physician attributed to the rupture of a blood vessel in the stomach; as I recall it, in the fall of that year I consulted the late Alfred E. Hille, M. D., of New York City, an eminent homoeopathic physician, who put me on a diet similar to "Salisbury's" which had attained much notoriety at that time.

"For all of twelve months my daily program was about a pint of hot water half hour before breakfast; mid-forenoon; mid-afternoon; and upon retiring; for the morning, noon and evening, meal ONLY, beefsteak or chopped beef."

"As I have passed my seventy-ninth birthday, may I not be justified for having the feeling that this treatment was most beneficial to me?"

D. A. R. Meets at Home Of Mrs. Paul Cromley

Interesting Program of Musical Numbers and Paper

Twenty-six members and one guest enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs. Paul Cromley of Ashville Tuesday evening when she was hostess at the November meeting of the Pickaway Plains chapter Daughters of the American Revolution.

The reading from the D.A.R. ritual, the Pledge of Allegiance, and the regular chapter exercises opened the meeting with Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker, regent, presiding. She read a timely Thanksgiving message.

Two vocal numbers by Mrs. James P. Moffitt with Miss Abbe Clarke at the piano were "Night is Gone and Day is Here" and "Sweet Song of Long Ago."

Mrs. Charles Pugsley, chairman of magazines, urged all those who wish to keep up with the work of Ohio chapters, to subscribe for the different D. A. R. magazines.

Miss Alice Ada May, chairman of National Defense, gave a short interesting talk and read passages from communistic literature.

The chapter voted to buy flags to be placed in each room at the High-school building and instead of the usual D. A. R. Christmas party decided that members should make a contribution to establish a milk fund for undernourished school children in the local schools.

The paper of the evening, "Legends of Many Flags," was ably prepared and read by Mrs. Henry S. Lewis. It was both interesting and instructive. Quoting the opening sentence:

"The flag as it is known today is the result of many centuries of development. In the dawn of civilization man felt the need of a token to distinguish family from family, and tribe from tribe, and standards emblematic of the nations."

She then traced the ancestry of each country's flag, and touched upon the flags that each State in the United States have adopted. It was interesting to learn that as early as 1787 Delaware adopted a flag, and that New Hampshire was the last state in the union to adopt a flag, in 1932.

The closing musical numbers arranged by Miss Mary Radcliffe, music chairman, were two vocal duets by Mrs. Moffitt and Mrs. Harry Heffner. They sang "The Swallow" and "Wings of Songs," and two solos, "Peacock" and "Silver Star," by Mrs. Heffner.

Assisting Mrs. Cromley in entertaining were Mrs. Seymour Miller, Mrs. W. O. Dountz, and Mrs. George Stoker.

D.U.V. Inspection

Mrs. Beatrice Vogie of Chillicothe, district deputy of the Daughters of the Union Veterans was the inspecting officer at the annual inspection meeting of the Catherine Wofley Hedges tent D.U.V. Tuesday evening in Memorial hall.

She complimented Mrs. Charles Stofor, president, and her corps of officers on their excellent work.

Forty members and several Chillicothe visitors were present for the ritualistic work and the business session during which it was decided to have the market and fancy work sale the first week in December.

A social hour followed the ritualistic work. The dining room where refreshments were served under the chairmanship of Miss Ada Hammel, was decorated with patriotic colors. Red, white and blue candles in black holders lighted the tables and at each corner was a favor of a chocolate turkey. Clever place cards of turkeys were used. Mrs. L. E. Miller was chairman of the dining room committee.

Mrs. Smith Honored

Mrs. Turney Weldon, S. Court-st., entertained the members of her bridge club at her home Tuesday evening for the pleasure of Mrs. Donald Smith of Toledo.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith have been visiting her mother, Mrs. C. E. Grace S. Court-st., for several days and left Wednesday morning to spend the winter in Coral Gables, Fla.

Three tables of contract bridge were in play at the party and favor for top score went to Mrs. Hildeburn Jones. Refreshments were served after the game.

Conservation League

The home of Mrs. John Bragg, Montclair-ave., was the scene of the bi-monthly meeting of the Child Conservation league Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Clark Will, president, was in charge of the business session during which Mrs. Glenn Geib gave a report of the eating tests being conducted in the city schools by the Kiwanis club and the league.

A report of the play, "Robin Hood" presented Monday after-

ALISA POSTS $5,000 MORE BOND IN FEDERAL COURT

FIRMS CHARGES DENIED TODAY; GOES ON TRIAL

Corwin-St Man Pleads Innocent to Illegal Ownership of Firearms

Roy Wals, E. Corwin-st, appeared in federal court again today, denied charges, put up another $5,000 bond, and was freed. He appeared charged with possessing firearms illegally transferred and with possessing firearms not registered. He was indicted last week.

Wals's hearing was before U. S. District Judge Robert Nevin, who did not set a trial date. He is expected to take this action, however, within the next few days. The local man was represented by Attorney W. B. Bartels of Columbus, former assistant U. S. district attorney.

Next Monday Wals will again face the court in a hearing charging conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws. He is under $5,000 bond after a denial of this charge.

Olsen's Wife Returns as Guest Star on Bernie Program; Moscow on Radio Today

A popular star returned to the radio Tuesday evening when Ethel Shutta appeared as guest star on Ben Bernie's program over WLW. Miss Shutta is the wife of George Olsen, noted dance band leader. She has been the star in many musical productions and her singing of "Rock-a-bye Moon," "Cross-eyed Kelly," "Little German Band" and "Hey, Sailor," have gained her quite a reputation.

It seems too bad that so many fine programs are found on the air at the same hour. Of course, unless one has two radios, he can listen to only one at a time. This sad state of affairs comes up Thursday evening at 9 when Death Valley days, Walter O'Keefe and his Caravan, and The Show Boat all are aired at the same time. The former program is always interesting and has its followers, the Caravan featuring O'Keefe, Glen Gray's music and Ted Husing is also popular, but the Show Boat program is the best on the list, this column believes, with Lanny Ross, Frank McHenry, Clyde Barrie and Gus Hunschen providing the entertainment.

An outstanding program today was from Moscow when the Twenty-fifth anniversary commemorating the death of Count Leo Tolstoy was aired. It was on the air at 9 a. m. over NBC with special music also presented.

HUNSICKER FOR AGE PENSIONS IN HOUSE VOTE

Representative Casts Ballot Against Restoring Property Clause to Act

By Columbus News Service

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20.—Applicants for old pensions in Pickaway-co will not be required to transfer their property in trust to the state, if the Senate concurs in a bill passed yesterday by the House of Representatives.

By a vote of 82 to 23, the House defeated an amendment offered by Rep. W. P. Van Ness (R) Champaign-co, to restore the property clause in the bill making Ohio's old age pension law conform to the national security act. Mr. Van Ness argued that the passage of his amendment would not penalize thrift as contended by numerous members, but would penalize the heirs of the recipients who should be taking care of their aged relatives during their lives.

However, a section remains in the law which gives the state a right to sue the estate of any deceased recipient of an old age pension for the amounts paid him by the state plus four per cent interest.

Hunsicker for Pensioners
In the vote on the property clause Rep. Clark K. Hunsicker (D) of Circleville cast his vote against retaining the clause in the bill.

The House voted to make the new bill effective January 1, 1937, and then passed the conformity bill as an emergency measure. Only one dissenting vote was cast on the measure, that by Rep. Ed King, (R) Vinton-co. The bill qualifies the state to receive federal grants for pension payments when Congress appropriates the necessary funds, and raises the maximum payments from $25.00 per month to $30.00.

Henry J. Berodina, chief of the Division of Aid for the Aged estimated that the monthly average payment, now at slightly more than $15 would be increased to approximately $18 when federal funds become available.

The striking out of the property clause will also increase the number of applications, members said, since a number of persons owning small parcels of property have hesitated to apply for aid for fear of losing their homes.

WOMEN LAWYERS BARRED

BUDAPEST.—Women will be banned from the Hungarian bar, according to the new bill in Parliament. Although there are only three lady-barristers in Budapest, the proposal of the government has caused a great upheaval among the women and the feminist organizations are planning demonstrations and protests against the new bill.

of the road. The last project covers the balance of the road extending from the Saltcreek-twp line to Route 56. Both of the projects were listed at $10,180 each. The county share is $2,220 on each. Eighty men will be employed on both projects which include ditching, grading and graveling. Officials hope to have this second road project in operation next week.

Others Not Reported
The local office reports no information has been received on the eastward storm sewer project, planned by the city to eliminate the box stone sewer now in use, and the extension of sewers in that section of the city.

Word was received by the office that three projects listed for women relief employables had been rejected and in their place a sewing project was substituted. This project, it is understood, hinges on the approval of the county commissioners. The sewing project covers the repair of clothing for needy.

One of the projects rejected by WPA for women labor was the repairing of school books. WPA officials contended this work was a part of the school's routine business.

The office reported 10 projects are now in operation in the county and the total men employed is 260. More men are to be added to a number of these projects as they gain headway and from all indications the release of the last three projects will consume all of the county's relief employables.

MAN HELD AS SUSPECT

County officers were notified at noon Wednesday a suspect had been arrested and was held at Mansfield for identification on a forgery charge.

The officers reported they believed the man held was wanted here for passing a forged check on Denny Pickens.

From the way the game is going at present, it looks very much as though good old Ethiopia's goal posts are in danger.

DELINQUENT TAX IS BEING PAID; MONEY OVERDUE

Decrease of $29,000 on County Books Shown; Dargusch Makes Statement

A decrease of over $29,000 in old tax delinquencies is shown in the 1934 tax according to figures released Monday.

In 1932 the old delinquent taxes amounted to $183,748.32. During the 1934 collection $75,971.56 was paid on these delinquencies, reducing the total to $107,776.76.

Delinquencies for the 1934 collection amounted to $46,689.27, officials reported making the total delinquencies $154,466.03 at the close of the 1934 collection.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20.—(INS).—Pointedly observing that there is due the counties of Ohio some $200,000,000 in delinquent taxes, Carlton S. Dargusch, vice chairman of the state tax commission, today advocated the collection of these unpaid taxes from those able to pay before new taxes are imposed.

"The attempt of the subdivisions of the state to pass the buck to the state is no solution of the problem either for those upon relief or for the taxpayer," said Dargusch.

Not On Solution

The vice chairman was discussing tax delinquencies in the light of direct relief being turned over to the counties after the federal government discontinues cash contributions Dec. 1.

Governor Davey, in his latest radio address, had indicated that passage of the Carey Act, permitting the counties to issue $15,000,000 in poor relief bonds to be retired by the state from the utilities excise tax, would adequately finance relief.

Approved Required

Dargusch agreed that it would in some counties where voters approve the bond issues, but pointed out that in others, even though the state is to retire the bonds, they cannot be issued without approval at the polls. Some difficulty has been encountered in the latter cases.

But, pursuing his demand that the counties be more energetic in the collection of unpaid taxes, Dargusch said that if they did this, no further state aid for relief would be necessary at the present time.

He said this assertion applied particularly to Cuyahoga county, which has been most insistent that the state assume the relief burden.

ESTRANGED ACTRESS, HUSBAND OWE TAXES

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 20.—(INS).—Barbara Stanwyck, film star, and Frank Fay, her estranged husband, each owe the United States government $22,061 on their income taxes, it was claimed today as Nat Rogan, district director of internal revenue filed liens against the couple and six other film luminaries.

The other defendants are Phillips Holmes, $705; Marshall Neilan, director, $754.44; Louis Monta Bell, director, $2,313.55 and his wife Betty Lawford Bell $2,811.15; Cliff "Ukelele Ike" Edwards, $40.24, and his wife, Nancy Edwards, $48.44.

MEXICO MUCH TOO EXCITING FOR VILLA'S DAUGHTER

Chieftain's Descendant Visits Land She Left as Child—and Hastens Away When Nerve-Wracking Incidents Occur

MEXICO, D. F., Nov. 20.—Francisco Villa has been dead for 12 years now but to millions in this land of the Aztecs, he still rides the lonely mountain trails at night.

And out of the canyon lands, the imaginative hear the retelling strains of "La Cucaracha" as his "army" cuts a swath through the country.

"That is what Pancho's daughter recently learned when she came from her New York home to visit the haunts where her father, to the spit of bullets and the lash of machetes, won the land.

Her First Return

Miss Celia Villa, a dark Latin beauty who speaks English better than Spanish, expected a peaceful vacation. It was her first visit to her homeland. When only a child her mother had fled with her from the carnage of war to New Mexico. Instead of quiet, however, she was mobbed by thousands when she landed at Balbuena airport. Her clothes were almost torn from her as police reserves fought with the crowds. Throngs lined the highways, shouting "Viva Pancho."

She had no sooner taken refuge in a hotel than bellboys began delivering threatening letters—notes from her father's enemies who warned that she, too, would be assassinated if she dared to take part in politics.

Plead for Another Joan

There were also other communications, surreptitiously delivered. They were from rebel chieftains who promised to make her another Joan of Arc if she would lend the magic name of Villa to their cause.

She learned, too, that she was being shadowed by the intelligence service of the Mexican army, and that a young officer, Captain Jorge Solis, had been assigned to watch her.

Whenever she appeared on the streets, crowds would gather. To thousands, she was a heroine but to others she was merely another Villa, a potential danger in a land where the word Villa is equivalent to Robin Hood.

A Poignant Threat

She attended a banquet given her by the men who had ridden with Francisco, and during the festivities, someone placed a dagger into her lap with a note, "Death to every Villa."

That was the end. The following day she departed for New York.

"I went to Mexico simply as a traveler," she related. "I didn't know that my father still lived so intensely in the memories of his people—that to many he is yet a god and to a few, a devil.

"I never dreamed of becoming a girl Pancho but some thought that was my purpose. They believed I had come to unite the old Villistas and lead them as my father had done. It was ridiculous.

Hero of Motion Pictures

"The thrilling exploits of my father have been re-enacted in three Mexican motion pictures already this year. Almost every week in Mexico City, some magazine carries an article about him, and schools throughout the country are being named for him. Every tent company has a play about him in its repertoire.

"There have been other famous chieftains, such as Zapata, but their deeds have dimmed—perhaps because they never dared to slay the Colossus of the North and have a General Pershing come riding after them."

Questions and Answers

Please tell me the best way to remove cream stains from table linen.

Cream stains are objectionable first from the fact that a greasy film is usually left on the linen unless the stain has been thoroughly removed. Usually washing in cold water followed by a washing in warm soap suds will remove the most persistent cream stain. If this is not successful a solvent such as carbon tetrachloride or denatured alcohol will remove the last traces of the stain. The linen should be washed following the use of chemicals.

Can vegetables be cooked in the oven without baking them?

Oven cooking of vegetables is a time saving method which enables you to prepare the vegetables while the meat or dessert is cooking. Potatoes, carrots, peas, beans, turnips and green beans are especially good prepared this way. Pare the vegetables, add salt, pepper, a small amount of butter and 1/2 cup of water to 2 pounds of vegetables. Place the vegetables in oven pans that have flat lids if space is any consideration. The pans may be stacked if you wish. The vegetables steam in this method and have full nutritive value with all the juices retained.

If you please give me some suggestions for table favors for Thanksgiving and Christmas?

Edible table favors meet with much approval and are suitable for place cards in most cases. Novel and original ideas produce the most amusement. Assemble these materials: marshmallows, toothpicks, gumdrops, jelly strings, cloves, spice drops, candy sticks and cinnamon hearts. Raisins, nuts and vegetable colorings also may come in handy in carrying out your ideas.

Priscilla and John Alden are favorites for the Thanksgiving season.

Make a cloak of brown crepe paper covering a cone of cardboard or stiff paper. Fasten a marshmallow to the small end of the cone, draw the facial features on it and place a hat made of black composition paper on the head. Priscilla wears a grey cloak with a white kerchief. Make over the same kind of cone. Her marshmallow head has a cap made with white crepe paper. Clothespin dolls of the same sort are easily made and are amusing to youngsters and adults alike.

A clever "turkey" may be created from a marshmallow, with the aid of a gumdrop stick for a neck, nuts for feet, a spice drop or a nut for a head, and snips of cranberry for beak and wattles.

There are innumerable animals you can create when the materials are before you and your imagination is given free rein.

A 35-piece band opened the program with Sousa's "Triumphal March," followed by "Time On My Hands," a dance tune.

By vote of the 5000-odd convicts the theme tune of the band is "The Prisoner's Song," but the arrangement wasn't complete for last night's program.

Tenor Hale O'Reilly, serving a life term for the murder of Sheriff Jacob Wiggers of Rock Island, sang "10,000 Years From Now."

Rep. Schnackenberg waxed indignant today, declared:

"I intend to find out from what appropriation funds are taken for these broadcasts. The idea of bringing murderers' voices into homes is unfitting."

Giant Shrinking

SCIENCE is mystified as to the cause of the shrinking of a circus giant, John Aveni, above, who is shrinking to normal size on a specially-built bed in a Los Angeles hospital.

Aveni, 47, who was 8 feet 8 inches tall and weighed 460 pounds six months ago, today weighs a mere 300. The giant is said to be so weak he cannot walk. It is believed the shrinking process which had brought about his unusual size is responsible for the disturbing away of his body.

owner, struck a blow at the Hitler government of Germany, when under the terms of his will disposing of an estate in excess of $500,000 it was held none of the bequests to relatives residing in Germany be paid until the Hitler government changes its anti-semitic policy.

The will was admitted to probate today.

"In view of conditions in Germany," the will read, "under which my beneficiaries residing there would not be able fully to control or remove their property or money, therefore, I direct my executors not to pay the bequests to any of my devisees who may be residing in Germany at the time of my death."

The bequests, many of them amounting to more than $5,000 will be held in the United States in trust until "conditions in Germany change."
